

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A display device of an industrial machine that operates in accordance with an operating condition according to an aspect of the invention includes a unit which inputs a state of an operating quality for a change in the operating condition, a unit which stores history data indicative of the change in the operating condition and the state of the operating quality corresponding to the change, and a unit which displays the history data.